7 NO LONGER MERE MORTALS

Jesus is the completed integration of mankind. He is now fully complete. He is now higher than the angels. He is a representation of what we are in the process of becoming. Indeed, we've actually had access to being more like Jesus now than we could ever imagine.

First, we must learn that God's Kingdom is fully on the Earth. Secondly, we have the Holy Spirit within us, that must become real. We must stop separating the spiritual from the physical world. Right now, we are like Adam and Eve before the fall except better, because now, we're exactly as Christ is. Coffee break time!

Do you know that the tree of Life is no longer in the Garden of Eden? The tree of Life is inside of you! His Name is Christ Jesus and it is His Spirit that resides within you. We don't have to look outside of ourselves for healing or anything else that most would consider supernatural. You are a branch that is being fed from the tree of life that is within. The more we grasp that concept, the less we rely on our physical senses.

Our physical senses are taking information from the outside world which is keeping us bound to the limits of the physical nature of things. There is a greater truth and it is running from inside of us to the outside world. Paul and the other early Believers had the first fruits of the Spirit. Yet, they were waiting for events to transpire for the fullest revelation.

And not only they, but ourselves also, which have the firstfruits of the Spirit, even we ourselves groan within ourselves, waiting for the adoption, to wit, the redemption of our body. (Romans 8:23)

The Apostles had the first fruits of the Spirit. The revelations of Paul were for his time period and part of foundational Christianity, but not in its completeness. That will be a hard swallow for many of you and I do not intend to go into the complexities of it. Through Paul and the other Apostles, we get a glimpse of what we should be looking like today, but it's just a glimpse: Paul and his cloths, Peter and his shadow, Paul and the poisonous snake.... And not only these things, also everything Paul underwent: the stoning, the whippings, the shipwrecks, being beaten with rods... All of these things he survived supernaturally. Neither Paul nor the other disciples ever struggled from disease and neither should we.

The problem is the way we look at it. The modern-day church thinks that one certain person has to pray over believers. That's not true. This comes from James, who was writing to Jews. They were used to the temple system and having to go to the priesthood. Once again, we don't look at the context or who the writer is talking to. All Believers are priests. We can be healed on our own.

And hath made us kings and priests unto God and his Father; to him be glory and dominion for ever and ever. Amen. (Revelation 1:6)

There are two distinctions to make: is the person a believer or unbeliever? With an unbeliever there is a transfer of the Holy Spirit, they don't have the Holy Spirit, so you are imparting Him to them. With believers we already have the Holy Spirit there is no impartation needed, and we are all priests unto The Father. A believer praying for another believer isn't giving them anything they don't already have. There is no transfer of power and the way ministers have it appear is that they have a "power" another believer doesn't have. This is wrong. So, quit thinking that you're Harry Potter performing magic! You're not.

This is also why many believers don't get healed. They think that they have to look outside the Holy Spirit who is in them. They are trying to get something that they feel is missing in themselves. You may ask, then, about the sensations people often feel. These sensations are coming from the Holy Spirit within them to increase their eager anticipation or confident expectation.

The scenario that is happening is this. When I speak life to another believer, or say, "Be healed," it is my expectation that is causing the person to believe that something happened. That person can now recognize or acknowledge they are healed. They were actually healed long before I came along. They were just unable to recognize this until they became expectant. It was my confident expectation based on my belief that Holy Spirit was already giving life to their mortal body, that they were already healed. They can now recognize improvement and acknowledge that they are healed. This has nothing to do with a transfer of "Power" or my breaking through their unbelief.

Healing was already attained for us, what Jesus accomplished was us receiving Holy Spirit and becoming sons of God. We aren't trying to pull our healing from the spiritual world into the physical world. Healing isn't coming from the heavens into our body. It's already within our body in the form of Holy Spirit.

Why does your body live in the first place? Because your spirit is inside of your body. When we accept that God has raised Jesus from the dead, His Holy Spirit joins with our spirit and we become one spirit with the Lord. We need only to recognize that there is improvement and then we'll be able to acknowledge that we are healed.

And if Christ be in you, the body is dead because of sin; but the Spirit is life because of righteousness. But if the Spirit of him that raised up Jesus from the dead dwell in you, he that raised up Christ from the dead shall also quicken your mortal bodies by his Spirit that dwelleth in you. (Romans 8:10-11)

In other words, Holy Spirit is giving life to your body, an always happening event when we believe it. Do you now understand what is going on when one believer prays for another? A person states they don't believe in healing, you then pray for them. Because of your expectation, they can recognize change and acknowledge they are healed. This is not you imparting power, rather it is your expectation being contagious, so now they can feel the improvement and acknowledge they are healed. The veil is now ripped from their face and they can see the healing. It is the same when you see your own healing. It's just easier to do with another person because you aren't feeling the symptoms!

The wrong perception is what keeps people from recognizing their healing. This goes hand in hand with the wrong belief that there is one anointed person that can break through another person's will, the dramatic scenario, the way churches display healing, and our perception of the gospels. We think there has to be a dramatic display, what I call fireworks. We're looking for all the emotional stuff and the feeling that God Almighty is coming down from heaven to touch you personally.

Pay attention. He's already inside of you and He's been guiding you, to your healing, since the day you became sick. If you believe you're healed, then you are. There doesn't have to be the dramatic scene that churches and media display. In most cases, the person healed does not experience healing the way it is imagined. Indeed, my original healing was dramatic, and I felt the liquid gold peace.

The rest of my healings, there wasn't all of that. Many people miss out on acknowledging their healing because they think they should be experiencing emotional fireworks. If it doesn't happen the way they perceive it to be, then in their minds they aren't healed.

A miracle healing is oftentimes what that person makes it out to be. Healing is always available. We just have to recognize improvement and acknowledge that we're healed. Don't miss out on your healing by the perception of what it should look or feel like. Many times, the symptoms melt away long before the person even recognizes that they are gone.

Many people will have a miracle and never recognize it. Often, people will tell me that they've never seen a miracle. During the course of our conversation, they will bring up a condition that they used to have. Suddenly, they realize that one day it just went away. That would be a miracle. This is huge!

We must become sensitive to miracles. The more you can recognize a miracle, then the more miracles you'll see because you become expectant for them. We think all miracles come with the fireworks: No fireworks, no miracle. Nope. That's wrong thinking.

Take a moment sit back, take a sip of coffee, and think about a time where you had a symptom that suddenly vanished. Ask Holy Spirit to bring it to your remembrance. I'll give you a minute. Here's a testimony in the meantime.

I was praying for a woman over the phone when I had a word of knowledge. I stated, "Your right elbow will get locked up and often there will be a sharp pain." At first, she said no. Then she thought about it. She gets excited and says, "Yes! My elbow used to be messed up. It's been fine for years." She then recognized that it had been a miracle. The whole reason Holy Spirit showed me this was so she would recognize that miracle and be expectant for a miracle with her current health condition. She was then able to acknowledge her healing with the current problem.

How many miracles like this have you experienced? Probably at least three or four. Write them down, get excited about them, and recognize miracles happen every day. We either rationalize them away or don't think about them in that way. Recognizing the miracles of the past will help you to acknowledge your present miracle. In fact, I'll boldly state that the more sensitive to miracles you become, the more you'll walk in divine health. Then, health issues will become a thing of the past. Honestly, I would never lie to you.

Healing is not magic, nor does it have to be a dramatic display, but it is a common occurrence. It's not just a once in lifetime, supernatural event, but as a natural, ever happening, daily part of a believer's life. We have been reborn, so we have a new father, new DNA, new life. We are no longer subject to the laws that the natural world would think of as normal. My Father who resides in me is the creator of the universe. I am now reborn into being the very fabric of His Essence. My Father is an immortal being as am I. Therefore, that which others consider as supernatural, I consider with great gratitude to be normal. The more you think about this, the more sensitive to acknowledging these truths you will become, the more you'll see.

Fill a glass jar full of lady bugs and make sure you punch some holes in it. That way, they won't die on you. Stare at them continually for, say, ten hours (I'm joking, kind of). After that time, walk outside. The only bugs you'll see will be lady bugs. You'll spot them right away. You won't recognize any other types of bugs. Your eyes will immediately pick out the lady bugs. You'll spot lady bugs coming from a distance. The same is true of the "supernatural" things of Our Father. The more you focus on it, the easier it'll naturally occur, and the easier acknowledging those instances will be. Paul states to focus on the things above, not the things of this Earth. In heaven, divine health is natural not supernatural. There is no disease. Therefore, the same is true on Earth now.

Here's an example from my life. I've been bald since the young age of thirty-five. Suddenly I noticed hair growing where it hasn't grown in some twenty years. My hair stylist recognized it without me even pointing it out. When our revelation grows of who we are, then the miraculous just naturally starts happening, not because I'm so holy, but because of who's inside of me. I should add that I haven't made any declarations or prayers for hair. Being bald never bothered me. The resulting hair growth is because of my sensitivity to the things of My father.

Another example of miracles just happening is that I had cracked the face plate glass on my smart phone. I threw the phone on my desk and walked away from it. I returned to it after about an hour later. The phone was completely whole. I am digressing a bit, and probably opening up pandora's box as well.

My main point is, the more we acknowledge the miraculous things of the Holy spirit, the more grateful we are, and the more often they will happen. Recognizing miraculous healings is just a starting point to leading a divinely healthy life.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Tony Myers is author of the books “The Lord Jesus Healed Me” and “Unlocking the Mystery of Diving Healing.” He lives in Virginia with his precious wife Deb and all their four legged family members. A former atheist who was healed from Lou Gehrig's disease, this illness left him paralyzed and dying. Then, he was suddenly healed by Christ.

Since his healing on July 4th, 2012, he has appeared as a guest on many different platforms and media. This includes radio, television, and of course the internet. Most of his time is spent on his business and ministering the Gospel of Christ to others. The planned future holds more speaking engagements and more books to come. Tony is very open to be contacted for prayer, ministry, book signings, and for opportunities to preach the Gospel of Christ.

MORE FROM TONY

After living a life of atheism, Tony Myers was fighting for his life. He was completely paralyzed, and his body was shutting down. Diagnosed with Lou Gehrig's disease, a debilitating neurological disease with no cure or treatment options, all hope was lost. Then suddenly one day, Tony, determined to end his own life, found a miracle healing instead!

During this journey you will cry, laugh, feel his wife's heartache, and then finally have a tremendous burst of joy as you celebrate his miracle with him and his wife Deb. Tony's honest, folksy telling of his story will make you believe he's sitting right in front of you drinking coffee! This story will encourage, motivate, and inspire you to believe in a miracle for yourself. If you are need of hope and encouragement, then this book is for you.

This book is the field manual as far as receiving healing for yourself is concerned. It is meant to awaken in the readers the mind of Christ and help them tap into the God-realm (i.e., "kingdom of heaven"). That's where we can receive the riches of Christ provided to us by grace. specifically, divine health and healing.
